Kevin Sorbo, who played the lead role on the ground-breaking “Hercules” TV series, speaks from the heart to audiences around the world. As the titular star of the number one TV show in the world for seven years and the victim of three strokes during that time, he carries a gravitas to his audiences on the topics he’s passionate about: health and perseverance, honesty and overcoming, and pro-life advocacy. After his prolonged recovery and another hugely successful TV series, “Andromeda,” the best-selling author of True Strength spent the next few decades smashing box-office records in movies like “God’s Not Dead,” “Soul Surfer,” “Let There Be Light,” and “Left Behind.”
